Obligation Section Number: 5.07(c)(vi)

Obligation Title: Undergraduate Scholarships for Aid-Eligible Students from the Local Community

Obligation Page Number: 53

Obligation Trigger: PACB Approval

Obligation Start Date: May 20, 2009 (PACB Approval date)

Obligation End Date: May 20, 2035* (25 Years from Commencement)

Obligation Status: In Compliance

Obligation

Undergraduate Scholarships for Aid-Eligible Students from the Local Community. In an effort to encourage students to attend Columbia College and the Fu School of Engineering and Applied Science, CU shall undertake a targeted recruitment effort for qualified students from the local community. Commencing on May 20, 2009, CU shall establish a scholarship fund to serve up to 40 aid-eligible undergraduate students per year who are admitted to Columbia College and the Fu School of Engineering and Applied Science from Harlem, with funding made available to meet their fully demonstrated financial need until 2033 or for a period of 25 years from commencement, whichever is longer.

* Undergraduate scholarships were made available with the start of the 2010-2011 academic year, one year after the trigger date. Therefore, this obligation will be in effect until the 2034-2035 academic year, 25 years from the commencement of the obligation implementation.

Note: In Spring 2014, the financial support for local students was officially named the Thompson-Muñoz scholarship award, named after two local Columbia graduates.

Outreach Plan Summary

Columbia Summer Programs College Fair - Every summer Columbia University hosts one of the largest summer college fairs in the country attracting over 100 colleges from across the country. The breadth and depth of our college preparatory efforts for local students increases the popularity of our summer college fair. The college fair consists of workshops for local parents and students, including tips for performing your college search and navigating the college fair, a workshop on financial aid, and a workshop on the college application process.

Scholarships for Local Students Honor Two Distinguished Alumni

Albert Thompson and Carlos Muñoz lived on the same block of West 116th Street and knew each other at Columbia College, overlapping for one year. Now their names jointly grace a new Columbia initiative for future generations of local students.

The initiative, named last spring in their honor, identifies some 40 promising undergraduates in West Harlem, Washington Heights, Inwood and the South Bronx. The students, who are welcomed into the program when they receive their acceptance letters from Columbia, have the opportunity to attend special events where they meet alumni and community leaders.

The program is one of many scholarship and grant programs the University administers to ensure economic diversity on campus, joining other initiatives such as the Dyckman Institute Scholarships for outstanding students from Washington Heights and Inwood. Financial aid workshops are held in the local community to publicize these and other efforts.

Carlos Muñoz and Albert Thompson

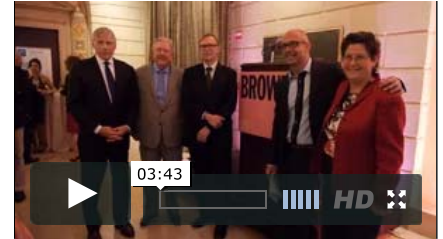

"Columbia is defined by the city we call home and by our historic commitment to providing educational opportunity to a remarkable diversity of young people, regardless of their family's income," said Columbia President Lee C. Bollinger. "We reach out to attract talented students all across the nation who are the first member of their family to attend college, but nowhere more so than our own New York community. We are proud to add the Thompson-Muñoz Scholars to this effort that's so central to our mission."

Columbia College and The Fu Foundation School of Engineering and Applied Science both participate in the program. Nearly half of the students at the College and School of Engineering receive financial aid, and 16 percent of the first-year students are the first in their family to attend college.

James J. Valentini, dean of Columbia College and vice president for undergraduate education, said, "Our goal with this program, as with financial aid in general, is to admit students based on their ability to contribute to and benefit from our community, not on their ability to pay for the experience."

Columbia provides need-blind admissions for U.S. citizens and permanent residents, meeting 100 percent of demonstrated financial need for all four years of study. Students on financial aid receive on average more than $42,000 annually.

Jessica Marinaccio, dean of undergraduate admissions and financial aid, said socioeconomic diversity is essential for building a representative student body. “Affordability and access are major themes in our outreach to prospective and admitted students,” she said.

One of the Thompson-Muñoz scholars is Jean-Franco Diaz (CC’16), who grew up in the Dominican community in Washington Heights. Diaz, who intends to major in economics and political science, said, “Attending Columbia has given me a global perspective.” Janay Anderson (CC’17), who grew up 20 blocks from Columbia and plans to major in the Medicine, Literature and Society track, said the University has prepared her to help her community.

Manhattan Borough President Gale A. Brewer (GS’97), speaking at a reception in October for the Thompson-Muñoz scholars, praised Columbia’s educational outreach programs, singling out the Double Discovery Center, which offers tutoring, standardized test-prep and Saturday enrichment classes. “These students go on to do great things in the world.” Indeed, columnist Frank Bruni recently profiled the benefits of a full-time summer session held on campus for college-bound local students in The New York Times.

Peter Johnson, director of Enrollment Group Special Projects and special assistant to the dean of undergraduate admissions and financial aid, applauded the students for their intellectual curiosity, initiative and hard work. “It is not a privilege to attend Columbia,” he told the students. “But it is an honor. Privileges are bestowed on us, honors you earn.” Roosevelt Montas (CC’95), associate dean and director of the Center for the Core Curriculum, told them, “Your presence enriches all of our experiences.”

Thompson (CC’54), a Columbia shot put record-holder who continued his track and field career in the Naval Reserves, graduated from both Columbia College and the College of Dental Medicine, where he is now an assistant clinical professor.

Muñoz (CC’57, MA’61) likewise earned a pair of degrees from the University, graduating from the College before getting a master’s degree in economics. He climbed to executive vice president for credit and risk management at Dime Savings Bank of New York. A former president of the Columbia College Alumni Association and member of the College’s Board of Visitors, Muñoz has long donated his time to his alma mater. He said the initiative made him proud of his Columbia heritage and had this advice for students: “Keep your minds open to all areas of opinion and take advantage of the trove of knowledge available at the University.”

Thompson told the students that while they deserved to be commended for getting into Columbia, they didn’t do it alone. “Your parents deserve credit for providing an environment for you to succeed,” he said. And going forward, he said later, they will have to help each other. “The biggest asset that all of these students have is one another.”

Columbia University Undergraduate Admissions Summary of Local Outreach Efforts

Columbia University's Office of Undergraduate Admissions undertakes numerous recruiting efforts geared towards students from high schools in the local community. Visits to conduct targeted outreach are made to high schools in the local community on an annual basis, with visits typically occurring during the fall semester of each academic year. At these visits representatives of the Columbia Undergraduate Admissions office (Columbia College and Columbia Engineering) provide information about our admissions profile, campus life, extracurricular activities, and admissions process and financial aid. Understanding that not all students will fit our criteria for admissions, we also discuss the college search process more generally. See the attached list of schools visited each year.

Students often contact Columbia University directly to inquire about admissions. If their high school is scheduled for a visit during the academic year, those students are contacted individually to notify them of the upcoming visit.

Partnerships have been established with schools and programs such as College Bound Initiative, Prep for Prep, The Albert G. Oliver Program, A Better Chance, the TEAK Foundation, and other such programs that support first generation/low income students by placing them in private preparatory boarding schools in the Northeast and private day schools in New York City. These partnerships allow us to establish a pipeline that encourages college preparation earlier in a student's high school career and insures that we initiate contact with upper Manhattan and South Bronx students who go to schools outside their residential school districts.

The Visitor's Center offers daily information sessions and campus tours for anyone interested in learning more about Columbia University. Information sessions are held twice daily and have time for question and answers. An administrator covers topics such as the admissions process and financial aid opportunities.

Finally, every summer Columbia University hosts one of the largest summer college fairs in the country attracting over 100 colleges from across the country. The breadth and depth of our college preparatory efforts for local students increases the popularity of our summer college fair. The college fair consists of workshops for local parents and students, including tips for performing your college search and navigating the college fair, a workshop on financial aid, and a workshop on the college application process. The fair is typically attended by more than 2,000 community members throughout the day's events.

Columbia is Affordable

If your family makes less than $60,000 annually (with typical assets) your parents will not be expected to contribute to the cost of Columbia. Families who make between $60,000 and $100,000 have a significantly reduced parent contribution. Even families earning over $100,000 annually can still qualify for significant financial aid.

COLUMBIA UNDERGRADUATE ADMISSIONS

Summer Programs College Fair at Columbia University in the City of New York

Date: Thursday, July 21, 2016

Location: Roone Arledge Auditorium, Lerner Hall
Enter on Broadway between 114th and 115th Streets

Columbia's Office of Undergraduate Admissions and the Columbia Summer Programs for High School Students invite you and your high school students to participate in our annual summer college fair on Thursday, July 21, 2016. Students and educators will have the chance to meet with representatives from over 100 colleges. The fair is a wonderful opportunity to learn about future educational options, academic and social support at the undergraduate level and financial aid and scholarship resources.

Registration

Groups are asked to register online for one of two fair time slots:

- 12:00 p.m. to 1:30 p.m.
- 2:00 p.m. to 3:30 p.m.

We anticipate a large number of attendees. To ensure the best possible experience for students, we ask that you please arrive on time and only during your scheduled time. Please note that we will not be able to accommodate guests in advance of their registered time slot.

The registration deadline is Friday, July 8, 2016. We strongly recommend that you register early, as space is limited. Registration will close before the deadline if we are filled to capacity.

Optional Educational Workshops

Registered groups have the opportunity to register for and attend Educational Workshops led by admissions officers from a range of institutions. These optional workshops are scheduled to take place in advance of fair time slots at 11:00 a.m. and 1:00 p.m. Groups are welcome to attend only the fair portion of the event if they wish.

- General Educational Workshops – The optional Educational Workshops are intended to provide an overview of the application process, financial aid, the Higher Education Opportunity Program and other services available to students. Though optional, the sessions are intended to inform and guide students' experience at our College Fair and their discussions with college representatives.

- Educator Workshops – New this year, we will be offering Educator Workshops and Roundtable Discussions exclusively for counselors. The Educator Workshop will provide updates and information on admissions and financial aid processes and resources, as well as student support services and programs.
  - Educator Workshops will be offered concurrently (and in close proximity to) the general Educational Workshops.
  - Educator Workshops are optional and counselors are welcome to attend the general Educational Workshops with their students.

Contact Information

If your plans change, please update your registration here. Please contact Maria Asayag, Assistant Director of Admissions, with any questions.

We look forward to welcoming your group to campus!

Columbia Engineering Women's Forum Monday, October 19, 2015

Columbia students come from all over the world and represent a variety of academic interests, life experiences and perspectives. With 46% of this year's first-year engineering class comprised of women and with over half of our incoming class self-identifying as students of color, we are one of the most diverse schools of engineering in the country.

At the Engineering Women's Forum students and parents will meet renowned Columbia Engineering faculty, be introduced to Columbia's unique approach to engineering and learn about the exciting opportunities available to female engineers at Columbia.

The program includes:

- A welcome from Columbia Engineering's dean, Dean Mary C. Boyce
- A roundtable discussion with female engineering faculty
- A departmental session to learn about an area of study within engineering (for students)
- An overview of academic resources for engineers (for parents and families)
- Opportunities to hear from current student leaders about campus life and engineering co-curricular organizations
- An opportunity to speak with admissions and financial aid officers one-on-one or to attend an engineering campus tour

Kindly RSVP online, as space is limited.

Check-in will begin at 9:00 a.m.; the program starts promptly at 9:30 a.m.

Dear [REDACTED]

On behalf of Columbia University, The Fu Foundation School of Engineering and Applied Science and the Office of Undergraduate Admissions, we would like to invite you to apply to the Columbia Engineering Experience \(CE<sup>2</sup>\) program taking place October 9-11, 2016.

CE<sup>2</sup> is Columbia's only selective three-day overnight program designed for current high school seniors who are interested in a Columbia Engineering education. The program will include:

- 100% funding: Participate in every aspect of the program without concern about financial constraints. All meals, housing and transportation, including travel to and from New York City, will be funded by Columbia.
- World-class faculty and research: Meet members of Columbia's renowned faculty and visit our world-class research centers.
- Inside look at life as a Columbian: Stay with an undergraduate host, experience campus life and meet current students. In previous years, participants have met student leaders from a variety of student organizations such as Engineers Without Borders, the National Society of Black Engineers, the Society of Hispanic Professional Engineers, the Native American Council and the Society of Women Engineers.
- Exclusive career and entrepreneurship opportunities: Take a behind-the-scenes tour of a leading engineering firm or organization in New York City. Past attendees have visited Google, Bloomberg, the World Trade Center Transportation Hub and the Columbia University Medical Center, to cite just a few examples.
- The NYC advantage: Learn about the cultural, professional, research and intellectual opportunities at our doorstep.
- Admissions 101: Participate in comprehensive college admissions and financial aid workshops conducted by members of the Columbia Admissions Committee.

Due to the selectivity and limited size of the program, an application with a school report is required. CE<sup>2</sup> is designed for high-achieving seniors who have:

- Exemplary academic records, particularly in math and science
- Sincere interest in pursuing an engineering education
- Genuine appreciation for the educational value of diversity in all its forms
