COLUMBIA | Wellness Center

Located in Columbia University's new Jerome L. Greene Science Center in West Harlem

The Wellness Center provides free blood pressure readings, cholesterol screening and A1C glucose testing to the community. Visitors will receive a record of their results, as well as information on ways they can improve their health.

On request, Wellness Center staff will provide information about free and low-cost health care available throughout Harlem and upper Manhattan. The Wellness Center will also provide onsite assistance with health insurance enrollment.

In addition to providing free blood pressure and cholesterol screening, the Wellness Center is home to two programs dedicated to empowering the community through health education.

The Mental Health First Aid (MHFA) program is dedicated to improving access to quality mental health in Harlem. The program teaches participants the warning signs of mental health problems, helps build an understanding of the importance of early intervention and seeking support. Information about support groups, tools for mental health, and local resources will be provided.

The Institute for Training Outreach and Community Health (InTOuCH) is a free community-based program designed to raise awareness about stroke and heart attack prevention. Through its rigorous training program, InTOuCH participants commit to serving the community as volunteer health workers and as counselors at Columbia's Wellness Center and local screening events.

About the Center

Welcome to the Columbia Community Wellness Center.

The center is led by neurologist Olajide Williams and psychiatrist Sidney Hankerson, physicians known for their pioneering approaches to improving public health in Harlem and Washington Heights. The Wellness Center operates with support from Columbia's Mortimer B. Zuckerman Mind Brain Behavior Institute ↗.

The Wellness Center houses the Community Health Worker Stroke Prevention program, designed to raise awareness about one of the leading causes of death and disability in the United States. The free program includes six-week training sessions held throughout the year to give local residents the tools they need to become community health workers. Volunteers learn about cardiovascular health issues, with a special emphasis on stroke and related risk factors. The program, modeled on the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention training curriculum for community health workers, is led by Dr. Williams, chief of staff of neurology and associate professor of neurology at Columbia University Medical Center; founder of Hip Hop Public Health; and co-director of the Center for Stroke Disparities Solutions in New York.

“When we committed ourselves to creating a new kind of open, accessible campus in Manhattanville, we knew it would be essential to use this as an opportunity to deepen our partnerships with the local community.”
— Columbia President Lee C. Bollinger

A Specially Designed Community Center

Located on the ground floor of the Jerome L. Greene Science Center, the Wellness Center provides health resources to area residents. ColumbiaDoctors ↗ host community-based initiatives that train members of the Harlem community to become health advocates to prevent stroke and promote mental health. The center also provides free cholesterol and blood pressure screenings, health insurance enrollment, weight counseling, and other services.

Annual Report: Mind Brain Behavior Public Outreach Center (Wellness Center)

State Submission Annual Reporting Period: October 2021 - September 2022

The Wellness Center, situated on the ground floor of the Jerome L. Greene Science Center, located at 610 West 130th Street, offers health resources to serve area residents. Please note the Wellness Center is not a clinical practice.

Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the Columbia Wellness Center closed its doors to the public on March 7, 2020.

Screening services at the center remain suspended. Community Health Workers (CHWs) perform blood pressure screenings at community events. Cholesterol screenings require a sterile environment and are not able to be performed at community events.

Stroke Awareness

The Wellness Center houses the Community Health Worker Stroke Prevention program (CHW), which empowers communities to combat stroke. The program includes 6-week trainings, held throughout the year at the Wellness Center, that give local residents the tools they need to become community health workers. Volunteers learn about various cardiovascular health topics, including motivational interviewing, with a special emphasis on stroke and related risk factors. Alumni of the program serve as health advocates in their communities and at faith-based organizations, with the overall goal of improving stroke outcomes and lowering the prevalence of stroke and related risk factors. The curriculum was developed with the assistance of community focus groups and in consultation with experts in health education.

The program, modeled on the Center for Disease Control and Prevention's CHW training curriculum, with the addition of culturally tailored multimedia components, is led by Olajide Williams, MD, chief of staff of neurology and associate professor of neurology at Columbia University Medical Center, founder of Hip Hop Public Health, and codirector of the Center for Stroke Disparities Solutions in New York.

OVERVIEW

Housed at the Columbia University's Wellness Center, the Institute for Training Outreach and Community Health (InTOuCH) program is dedicated to train and certify lay and professional volunteers from faith and community-based organizations (CBO) as community health workers (CHW). The InTOuCH program that is focused around stroke and cardiovascular disease (CVD) prevention, and consists of eight weeks of training – six weeks of didactics, plus two weeks of hands-on practicum.

“To date, we have trained 13 cohorts and 172 Community Health Workers (CHWs).”

The comprehensive curriculum designed with a health disparities lens covers a range of health topics, including stroke, heart attack, diabetes, high blood pressure, cholesterol levels, motivational interviewing, navigating the NYS health insurance exchange, healthy nutrition and physical activity. Through this training program, volunteers will become proficient in blood pressure measurement techniques, body mass index (BMI) measurement, cholesterol, and HbA1c testing. The CHWs also acquire effective communication skills for stroke and cardiovascular disease (CVD) health counseling among other skills.

The training is FREE, and Columbia University faculty and staff teach all topics. At the end of the training, certified CHWs conduct free community health screenings, provide health counseling and linkage to care. They receive continued health education, and have several opportunities to continue working with the alumni group.

The program also provides training and certification on New York State's Health Insurance exchange, certifying our CHWs as “Insurance Application Specialists”. We currently have a footprint in all the 5 boroughs including 56 churches., 2 CBOs. The program has made a tremendous community impact with over 25,000 blood pressure screenings, 500 counseling and referrals, and more than 400 insurance sign -ups.

WORKFORCE DEVELOPMENT

The vital role of Community Health Workers (CHW) and their impact on improving the health status of the communities they serve has been well established. As credible, trusted members of their respective communities, CHWs are one of the most powerful resources to combat health disparities, particularly among populations at greatest risk for poor health outcomes.

According to the Bureau of Labor and Statistics, the demand for CHWs is projected to increase by as much as 18% nationally and 25% in the New York metropolitan area by the year 2030, which may be due in part to the growing health care workers shortage. Currently, training across the United States varies from program to program. As CHWs become increasingly recognized both as a profession and for their impact on health equity, the development of training standards is vital.

Building from the core of a CHW curriculum designed by the Centers for Disease Control (CDC), the InTOuCH team is developing a standardized training curriculum that leverages best practices of our CHW training program and the expertise of our curriculum leaders at Columbia's medical school, so that other medical centers might replicate our model and bring the urgently needed services of CHWs into at-risk communities across the nation; and expand our CHW program to reach more residents of Northern Manhattan.

With a standardized CHW curriculum, for the first time we would be able to establish a system of training and certification—thus providing CHWs with a formal scope of practice. In addition, the attendant opportunities to be funded by third parties such as Medicaid. The standardized curriculum would be a step toward allowing federal and private insurance agencies to consider reimbursing CHWs directly for their work at competitive wages so that their pay reflects their valuable contributions to community public health. Moreover, the development of a standardized curriculum for CHW training may ameliorate the current financial issues that adversely impact CHWs and their ability to earn an income commensurate with their contributions to improving health outcomes

The main title 'New England DIOCESE MEETING' is written in a large, stylized font, with 'New England' in a light blue script and 'DIOCESE MEETING' in a white serif font. Below the title, the text 'MORNING & AFTERNOON SESSIONS' is in a bold, light blue sans-serif font. Under this, there are two columns of activities. The left column is headed 'WORKSHOPS' and lists: BIBLE STUDY | 9AM, SOCIAL MEDIA AWARENESS | 10AM, HEALTH AWARENESS | 11AM, PRAISE AND WORSHIP | 11AM, FINAL EXPENSE PLANNING | 11AM, DIGITAL EXCELLENCE | 12PM, SISTERHOOD + BROTHERHOOD | 1PM, and DIET AND NUTRITION | 1PM. The right column is headed 'YOUTH CAMP ACTIVITIES' and lists: ARTS AND CRAFTS | 10AM, MUSIC AND MOVEMENT | 11AM, RELAY RACES | 12PM. Below these is a section for 'FUN AMENITIES' which lists: PHOTOBOOTH | 11AM, BASKETBALL | 11AM, and PAINTING | 11AM. At the bottom left, under the heading 'EVENING SESSIONS', it lists: CHOIR REHEARSAL | 2:30PM, CONCERT & PRAISE RALLY | 3PM, BENEDICTORY SERVICE | 4PM, and identifies the speaker as BISHOP TERRY HICKS | NEW HOPE WOTCC | NEW ENGLAND DIOCESAN. Below this, it says 'DINNER: $10 | BBQ LUNCH'. On the bottom right, there is a photograph of two men: an older Black man with glasses wearing a black suit and a pink clerical collar, and a younger Black man in a dark suit and blue tie.
